Traveling Memories, Silences and Secrets:

Life Narratives of Violence Among Refugees from Africa's Great Lakes Region (AGLR)

Tuesday 25 April | 14:15 | IG 311

The lecture will discuss a project our research team recently started ERC-funded that aims to map and examine to what extent, and under what conditions, the life narratives of the Africa Great Lakes Region (AGLR) refugees evolve, travel, and transform across time and space. It will explore how these narratives shape relationships among refugees and communities in countries of transition and destination. It examines how life narratives change as AGLR refugees encounter preconceived notions about themselves and their communities in host countries.
